Kellie is a member of the firm's Litigation group, working in the areas of personal and business disputes and media law.

Prior to attending law school, Kellie earned her Bachelor's in Political Science with a Minor in Spanish and a Certificate in Journalism from the University of Cincinnati. During her time as an undergrad, Kellie worked for the Ohio Innocence Project as a journalism intern, writing client bios and success stories for the organization's website and clemency letters on behalf of the inmates and exonerees.

After a brief stint as an account manager for a media company, Kellie returned to the UC College of Law where she was a member of both the Trial Practice Team and the Moot Court Honor Board and was awarded The Clinical Legal Education Association Outstanding Clinical Student Award and the College of Law Honors Scholarship. She also worked as a Research Assistant to Professor James T. O'Reilly, researching the evidentiary issues in product liability cases, the treatment of Dementia in the law, federal pay exemption standards for nurses, and successor employer cases in the medical industry.

As a third year law student Kellie interned with UC's Sixth Circuit Appellate Clinic where she worked on two federal criminal appeals, and successfully argued her case, United States v. Fowler, No. 14-2412, 2016 WL 1381907 \(6th Cir. Apr. 7, 2016\), before the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Kellie has clerked for several Cincinnati Judges, including: The Honorable Robert P. Ruehlman, The Honorable Beth A. Myers, and The Honorable Judge Howard Sundermann. During her time with Judge Myers, Kellie worked primarily on the Commercial Litigation docket where she gained experience with complex litigation and commercial disputes.
